Labor Strife
Mars Start Of
75th CongressTexan Favored To Win
Speakership In House

WASHINGTON (UP)—The bitter fight over the House Democratic leadership showed a marked trend for Rep. Sam Rayburn, D., Texas, today as the Tennessee Democratic delegation came out for the Texan.

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—Bright hopes for continued recovery were shadowed today by conflict between capital and labor as second New Deal leaders gathered for legislative preliminaries to another Roosevelt administration. The United States Supreme Court resumed sessions after a holiday recess which postponed decisions bearing directly on vital social and economic problems.

The overwhelmingly Democratic 75th Congress will convene at noon tomorrow.

With Congress convening, the nation's industrial strife extended from the docks of either coast to the great automotive plants of the Mid-west.

The dock strike crippling sea commerce has so far resisted federal mediation. General Motors Corporation plants are being stilled by sit-down strikes sponsored by John L. Lewis' committee for industrial organization. There are hints of a coal strike next spring.

A move toward federal intervention in the automotive strikes came over the week-end when Secretary of Labor Perkins conferred with Lewis.

Political observers see significance in the dispute in which Lewis has challenged the labor policies of General Motors. Ultimate presidential intervention in that strike situation to avoid the shock to recovery which continued plant idleness would involve us expected by many persons.

The President will begin formal outline of his second New Deal program in an annual message which he will read to a joint session of Congress, January 8. Two days later his budget message will be read to Congress by clerks. On January 20, he will be inaugurated for a second term.

CABIN THEFTS
NET TERM IN STATE PRISON

Earl Nolan, Nevada itinerant, charged with the burglary of cabins above Kyburz in the American River Canyon, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in San Quentin prison when he came before the court Monday morning for sentencing. He is liable to serve not less than one year and not more than 14 years.

Nolan was taken into custody by State Traffic Captain E. A. Brewster last week, when he appeared at a local barber shop in an attempt to sell a razor. Brewster previously had been furnished a description of the man as a "suspicious character" and when the man was questioned, he admitted entering several cabins.

He pleaded guilty to an indictment based on a true bill found by the recent grand jury.

James Dixon Reports
Theft From Residence

According to a report to city police, the residence of James Dixon was entered sometime between December 27 and January 3, and on 2-burner electric plate and three boxes of household silverware were taken. Entrance was, apparently, gained by use of a pass key.

Miss Florence Patricia McCann has returned to studies at a San Francisco secretarial school, following the holiday vacation.

She was a member of Marguerite Parlor No. 12, N.D.G.W., and of Fallen Leaf Chapter No. 90, Order of Eastern Star.

WM. T. SEXTON
RITES MONDAY

The funeral services for William Toombs Sexton, who died January 1 at Palo Alto, were held Monday afternoon from the Federated Church. The services at the graveside were by El Dorado Post No. 119, American Legion, of which Mr. Sexton was a charter member. Members of the post served as pallbearers.

Mr. Sexton was born at Reservoir Hill, near Placerville, on January 8, 1874, the son of Sarah and the late Michael Sexton. A grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Toombs, pioneers in this county, Mr. Sexton spent his entire life here except for that period when he was in the U. S. forces during the World War, 1917-19. He was a first class sergeant in the 505th Aero Squadron.

A charter member, he was also one of the oldest members of the local American Legion post, and was a member also of Court Confidence No. 117, Foresters of America.

In addition to his mother, Mrs. Sarah Sexton, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary McBeth, and other relatives in various parts of the county.

Eleanor Tagtmeier To Be In Queen Contest

Miss Eleanor Tagtmeier was chosen New Year's eve by Placerville Ski Club to be their candidate for queen of the Sacramento Winter Sports Carnival, to be held at the Sacramento Memorial Auditorium on January 9.

Selection of the candidate was made by a ski club committee at the fifty-sixth annual ball of Placerville Parlor No. 9, N.S.G.W., through the courtesy of the members of the parlor.

The ball, which raised proceeds to go to the parlor's fund for the benefit of homeless children, drew a large attendance and is reported as having been a success in every way.

LEGISLATURE
OPENS MONDAY

By GEORGE E. HELMER

SACRAMENTO (UP)—California's legislators, distinctly partisan for the first time in decades, assembled today for the start of their 52nd session.

Lacking important issues that marked the beginning of previous sessions, the lawmakers were more interested in early prospects for the 1938 governorship race than they were in any immediate problems facing them.

Democrats, in control of the Assembly, were opening intent upon building a reputation that would aid their party in electing the next governor. Republicans, realizing that was the case, were just as anxious to place the legislature on a non-partisan basis and prevent the Democrats from making capital of any liberal program which may be adopted.

MOVIES DRAW
4 BILLION TO
SHOWS IN 1936

NEW YORK (UP)—Motion picture attendance in 1936 established a new record high of 4,180,000,000, a survey by Poor's Industry and Investment Surveys said today. This was 12 per cent greater than in 1935.

The survey also said rate of attendance had been upward through the year, the final quarter showing a 15 per cent over the comparative 1935 period.

At the close of the year there were nearly 19,000 domestic motion picture houses of which 86 per cent were operating. At the low of the depression there were 20,000 houses but only 73 per cent were open.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Joseph A. Chargin, Jr., today was appointed acting postmaster at San Jose, California.

Record Mark
Established
During 1936$1,800 Gain Over '35 Is Reported For Past Year

Placerville's postoffice receipts for the year just ended swept to a new record total, surpassing the previous heaviest year, 1935, by more than $1,800 worth of business.

This is according to figures announced Monday morning by Postmaster Joseph Scherrer.

A preliminary report made by John Nelson, assistant postmaster, showed that the business of the office during the last calendar year amounted to $27,733 as compared with $25,922.15 for the year 1935, the largest previous total.

Nelson is developing other phases of the report.

Announcement of the new record total of business was hailed by business men as a sign of the county seat's continued growth and by those who have been endeavoring for several years to obtain a new federal building for Placerville as evidence of the value of their claims.

SCHOOLS RESUME
CLASSES AFTER
2-WEEK HOLIDAY

All schools of the county were in session Monday morning, following a two-week Christmas and New Year vacation, according to reports to Superintendent E. J. Fitzgerald.

Cedar Grove school resumed with a 100 per cent attendance despite there being two feet of snow in the district. The first semester of the year at the high school closes on January 22.

Future school vacations may be a little uncertain. The annual spring vacation is subject to the will of the various boards of trustees and may or may not be held, according to the manner in which school progresses. May Day falls on Saturday this year and Memorial Day, May 30, falls on a Sunday, but may be celebrated Monday.

"Theirs Not To Reason Why"

Voice of the People

They have swung into action, at Sacramento. With past blunders forgotten and a clean slate to write on, a new legislature full of new hopes and enthusiasm and many new members, rolls up its sleeves and goes to work on California's problems.

Will they botch the session, or make a resounding success of it? The answer to this question rests on nothing new. It depends on the same old fundamental that has faced every legislative gathering since the Senate of ancient Rome first convened.

Let them listen for the voice of the people. Let them hear it and obey its bidding.

Seldom is the people's voice among the loudest ones. The loudest are usually those of pressure groups. More often than not the people's is nothing more than the still small voice of the lawmaker's conscience.

But fortunately this year, on several important matters, California's legislators have the emphatic roar of the people's voice still echoing in their ears. Just last November, millions of voters expressed their opinion on state matters ranging from liquor control to art museums, and including civil service, chain store taxes, and registration laws.

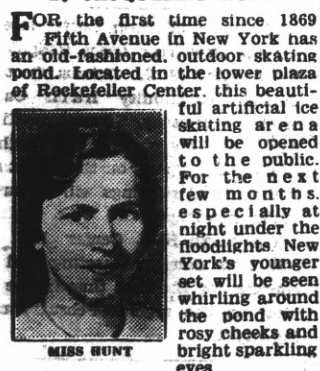

Some of these will again face the lawmakers. It is plainly their duty to analyze how the vote went and why, and to act accordingly. Not often do they have such a clear-cut expression of the popular will.

On other problems it may be more difficult, but it is seldom impossible for a conscientious representative to know how the majority feels. If it were, our democracy would not have survived and flourished.

This new legislature CAN turn deaf ears to pressure groups and listen for the voice of the people. Will it? At least we can hope.

Best to Use Cream on Skin When You Go Skating

By JACQUELINE HUNT

FOR the first time since 1869 Fifth Avenue in New York has an old-fashioned, outdoor skating pond. Located in the lower plaza of Rockefeller Center, this beautiful artificial ice skating arena will be opened to the public. For the next few months, especially at night under the floodlights New York's younger set will be seen whirling around the pond with rosy cheeks and bright sparkling eyes.

Beautiful debutantes and tired business girls who appreciate this enjoyable opportunity to keep their waists slim and their carriage graceful are sure to take full advantage of the skating arena.

Outdoor skating, whether it is done in the shadow of skyscrapers or on the old mill pond, brings up new beauty problems that call for prompt and definite attention just when we thought we were about set for the winter.

New creams and make-up preparations are being lined up to protect your skin from the freezing temperature, cold wind and the unhappy results of indoor living conditions.

There has been a radical change in nourishing creams. Cosmetic experts are making new creams that are as similar to the actual chemical composition of the skin's own natural oils as science can make them. As a result the creams are lighter in texture, readily absorbed by the skin, and give prompt and pleasing improvement to nearly all skins.

These light, rich creams are used in bedtime treatments after your skin has been thoroughly cleansed with cream and tonic or tepid water and pure soap. Remove the excess water with tissues or an absorbent towel, then pat on the nourishing cream while the skin is still warm and soft. Leave the cream on for 15 minutes and remove any that has not been absorbed. The pleasant thing about these creams is that there is no greasy or sticky residue to make you uncomfortable. Rinse your skin with very cold water or pat quickly with tonic to keep the pores fine and elastic.

During the day and especially when you are skating or skiing, your skin must have a good protective cream. Remember that exercise makes your skin rosy and stimulated but this actually increases the danger of chapping when the cold wind hits you.

Use a foundation that has a good bit of oil in it or use a film of all-purpose or cold cream. splash immediately with cold water to "set" the cream, and blend in a soft creamy rouge then press powder into the foundation. Powder liberally, wait for a minute or two, and remove the excess with a blending brush.

Now your mouth. Apply your lipstick, massaging the color well into the skin. Unless the stick is very soft, apply a film of colorless pomade and resist the temptation to moisten your lips. With the lipstick and pomade it shouldn't be necessary, and moist lips are especially susceptible to Jack Frost.

As soon as you go in from your outing, remove the old cosmetics with quick-melting cream and apply a soothing hand lotion or if your skin seems unduly flushed, a film of nourishing cream. Do not apply your rouge and powder immediately, but give your skin a rest. After half hour or so, you can remove the cream with a pad moistened in skin tonic and apply your make-up—this time without a foundation if you expect to stay in the house the rest of the day.

The Book-Mark

By WIBORADE

A few years ago we read a book by Max Miller called "I Cover the Water-front" and we were especially impressed by Mr. Miller's sense of integrity. Since that time he has written several books which we have not seen but we came across his last "For the Sake of Shadows" which is the story of his Hollywood experience.

Mr. Miller's Hollywood is devoid of glamor and romance; it is no adult fairyland with Princess Garbo and Prince Gable. Indeed, the conversation of a nameless actress shocked even our seasoned ears. Hollywood lives, moves and has its being according to one pattern, Max Miller tells us and that is "What the public wants, not a discriminating public, mind you, but the public content to live in its world of illusion."

Scenario writing is trick writing. In the movies, literature is judged by "that rather absurd thermometer of whether or not the book is a best seller. The more average it is the more appeal it has to the average which is the majority." Which reminds us of what Logan Pearsall Smith once said about best sellers, that they are "the gilded tomb of mediocre talent" but we must admit that we read plenty of them ourselves and would give much to have written some of them. In Hollywood, the writer's voice is a minor one as he ranks below actors, producers and directors.

Max Miller's Hollywood sojourn lasted just one week. He could not conform though his roof needed crocoting and his automobile needed a new top. The fabulous salary which was offered to him would have furnished these necessities and some luxuries in the bargain but Miller was not to be bought. The book is as fine a specimen of honest and sincere writing as we have come across in some time.

The course in history that we took long ago left much to be desired so when we find historical information in pleasant doses we are always happy to imbibe it. We found a book that straightens some things out for us to our satisfaction. For example, the Medici family is forever popping up at different times and in different places. Milton Waldman in his book "The Biography of a Family" puts the members of this family in their places with admirable simplicity. "The Biography of a Family" deals with Catherine de Medici and her children but the family tree is explained clearly. Catherine's family is made as interesting as any family of fiction—the Whiteoaks of Jalna or Galsworthy's Forsytes.

In Catherine's day if your political opponents were getting too strong for you, all you had to do was to present them with a scarf or gloves prepared by your private toxicologist, who knew his poisons (an office as essential in those days as the brain trusters have been in ours) and presto, you were rid of them with no questions. Only they might do the same for you.

Catherine had a vast gusto for the business of living. She bought orange groves and old farm houses like any modern speculator moreover "she could never see an attractive piece of ground without wanting to put a house on it." Her sons and daughters were drilled by her in the niceties of court life but she forgot to tell them that there were such things in the world as honor, self control and "common, everyday piety."

The climax of the book is the account of the massacre of St. Bartholomew's day when the throats of 10,000 Huguenots were cut. With conciseness and restraint, Mr. Waldman presents the overwhelming horror and degradation of this event. The bluffs do not exaggerate when they say that Catherine and her age "come to pulsing life" in this book. Any patient student can do historical research but it takes a special genius to give to the result of research vitality and glowing life. Mr. Waldman has done this.

We feel low because our appreciation of art does not develop as it should. We saw reproductions of modern paintings recently and among them was the famous "Nude Descending the Stairs." We had seen the picture in its hey-day in 1915 and failed to appreciate it. Meanwhile we had hoped that it and its kind would be relegated to the shelter of insignificance by the annihilating drift of time, but here it was, as alive as you please.

"Do not look for arms or legs or stairs," our superior mentor told us, "you will see more of these things. The work is an abstraction. It was purely a whim that made the artist call it 'Nude Descending the Stairs.'"

We recalled how someone had said that it looked like an explosion in a shingle factory and we agreed heartily.

"Do not hink before an abstraction."

Feel," continued our mentor, "you are in a world of sensation."

Something is wrong with us, we concluded. Turn us loose into a flower bed or at a perfume counter and sensation is what we experience—we are living in a castle in Spain, walking in a woodland path to Arcady, journeying to golden Smarkand. Turn us loose among pictures consisting of loops and curves and angles and we cannot even remain suavely neutral.

"The picture is diverting and amusing," we heard the mentor say. Is it, indeed? If we must find amusement in loops and angles we will look at animated cartoons.

We are not haunted by theme songs, we are haunted by book titles. We can't get away from the title of the January Literary Guild Book—"The Street of the Fishing Cat."

PARADE OF SPORTS

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Writer)

MIAMI, Fla., (UP)—Mr. Tom Thorp, who somehow manages to find time between stewarding at race tracks, writing a newspaper column, and defending his national free style eating championship, to referee many of the nation's top football games, thinks that Boyd Brumbaugh, who won the Orange Bowl game for Duquesne here New Year's Day, is the best back he has seen all year.

This is high praise, indeed, for during the 1936 season Tom Thorp saw some sweet ones. Among the games he worked were Yale and Princeton, Army and Navy, Notre Dame and Navy, Pennsylvania and Princeton, and Yale and Dartmouth, which means he saw in action such capable talent as Monk Myers, Clint Frank, Ken Sandbach, Little Bill Ingram, and the Messrs. Kurilisch, Handrahan, and Murray, not to mention the Notre Dame workmen.

"The only fellow I saw in the same class as Brumbaugh," Thorp said as he yanked at his linen knickers in the dressing rooms, was "Clint Frank of Yale. And he wasn't quite as good. Did you ever see a sweeter piece of work than that winning pass in the last quarter?"

No, we never did. And that goes for 17,000 others gathered in the sunshine of the Orange Bowl. It was one of those passes that you read about in boys' books, with Duquesne trailing 7 to 12, and with no more than four minutes left to play, Brumbaugh faded back to his own 40 for a pass. As he took his stance and swept the field for a possible receiver, two Mississippi State linemen laid their hands on him.

Coolly Brumbaugh fought them off with his free hand until he spotted Ernest Heferle, an end, out in the open

Navy Bombers Delay Hop Until Jan. 10th

SAN DIEGO (UP)—Flight to Honolulu of six giant new navy patrol bombers, the first completed under three contracts for 176 of the huge aircrafts, will be delayed at least until "after January 10." Rear Admiral Ernest J. Kink, commander of the aircraft base force, North Island, said today. Ten of the new planes, said to be the most advanced of their type anywhere in the world, have been delivered to North Island, but only six will make the first flight to their Hawaiian base.

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—The Mission Reds of the Pacific Coast baseball country, today admitted she having February 22, Joseph Bearwald, president, announced today.

and running hell for leather on Mississippi State's 25-yard line. Then, with a desperate lunge, he shook himself clear of his tormentors, leaped in the air, and let fly. The ball dropped into Heferle's arms as he turned around, and he went on for the touchdown that made the final score 13 to 12.

The other Duquesne touchdown was of Brumbaugh's making, too. With his club behind 12 to 0, he went to work in the second period and almost single handedly carried the ball 62 yards for a score. In this drive he tore the Mississippi line apart. And at the tackles and guards, too. The boys simply couldn't stop him. They would hit him at the line of scrimmage and he would drag them five and six yards before going down.

Brumbaugh was not only a giant on offense; he was equally potent on defense. He outshone Mike Basrak, Duquesne's famed center which was no mean task, for Mike, once he quit reading his newspaper clippings in the first period, was a holy terror.

"He was so far and away the best center I saw all year," Thorp said, "that I can't think of any second." Thorp expressed the belief that "Pee Wee" Armstrong, Mississippi back, was the best passer he had seen for five years. And that Fred Walters, Mississippi end, was one of the finest receivers of all time. It was this combination which scored Mississippi's second touchdown, and which paved the way for Ike Pickle to score the opening one.

"Armstrong worked under a handicap," Thorp said, "because in the L. S. U. game he suffered a broken collar bone. He was all strapped up on his pitching side, but that didn't keep him from throwing strikes. Given good health and I would hate to try and name a better passer."

Mississippi State scored in each of the first and second periods, with Armstrong throwing the ball for consistent gains. Duquesne tallied in the second period and the fourth. Pickle, who had an off year this season after running wild in 1935, must take the blame for the final Duquesne score. He allowed himself to be pulled in, and then outrun by Heferle.

DIAMOND MINES TO BOOM AGAIN IN SOUTH AFRICA

KIMBERLEY, South Africa (UP)—The diamond industry has recovered two-thirds of the ground it had lost since the boom year, 1932, and Kimberley looks for the return of its most prosperous days.

Sales during 1936 are expected to total $40,000,000 when final figures are available.

Sales in 1932 reached $80,000,000. From that figure they slumped to $7,500,000 in 1933. There was a recovery to $20,000,000 in 1934, but only as the result of complete closing down by the big South African producers. During 1935, mines gradually were reopened, and sales for that year totaled $31,250,000. Now every mine in the Kimberley district is open except one, the Jagersfontein, which produces blue-white stones, and it is announced that work will be resumed there soon.

The improvement in sales is reflected in the price of diamond shares, some of which have risen spectacularly, and still are rising. Shareholders who had seen their holdings reach the lowest level for all times are now recovering their losses.

The principal destinations of the stones in normal times are the United States, Great Britain and India. The last-named country has largely increased its purchases in recent years, re-investing in diamonds a great deal of the proceeds of its discarded gold.

Great Britain will claim the attention of the diamond market in 1937, when big business is expected to develop as a result of the Coronation. The United States has also increased its purchases, both the important diamond centers of Antwerp and Amsterdam reporting larger business with the United States.

Firemen report 44 fires in the city for the past year, half of them grass fires, and the property loss held to something over $300.

That's just a detail to bear in mind when firemen's dance time comes along on February 6.

Have you paid for your Christmas Seals yet?

San Francisco is still buzzing with those stories which were originated away back when Edward was King of England. Edward, you know, was the man who found out that the world is only a neighborhood.

We had press passes to the Columbia WPA project theater, but each time we thought we might use 'em we couldn't find the darned thing advertised in the papers, so presumed they had folded up.

We're inclined to agree with the young woman who said of the new bay bridge, "Darn it, it just doesn't seem like San Francisco when you don't cross the bay on a ferry."

WINTON IRVINGS ARE HOME FROM TRAIN-CAR TOUR

Mr. and Mrs. Winton Irving (nee Naomi Long) returned New Year's night from a train and auto wedding trip which took them to eastern and southern states.

They went to Detroit by train, through Seattle, Spokane, St. Paul and Chicago, and in the auto center took delivery of a new car which they drove some 6,000 miles before reaching Placerville.

This trip took them to Niagara Falls, New York City, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Knoxville, New Orleans, Dallas, Fort Worth, Flagstaff and Los Angeles.

They report many interesting sights but the one thing that impressed them most was the extreme poverty of the negroes in the southern states, and the means of conveyance. Some of the negroes had bicycles, oxen teams, and in one case a cow hauling a wagon with wood. All seemed to be hauling their wood supply home, and they also noted the ladies for the most part wore very short skirts, odd looking hats, and sweaters of most gorgeous hues. The negroes were of more interest to them than any other thing they saw.

They seemed to be especially poor in the states of Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina. Farther west they did not appear to be so poor in worldly wealth. They tried to take some pictures of the negro children, but always a parent would prevent the picture being taken, did not wish the world at large to see a picture of their poverty.

They spoke of the very fine southern meals they had. It was different to any other part of the country through which they traveled. They encountered a lot of snow through New York state, Pennsylvania and Virginia. They passed over the mountains at Flagstaff, Arizona, where they had to use chains, and saw quite a number of wrecked cars by the side of the road along the way.

20 Are Killed In Madrid Air Raid

MADRID (UP)—Fifteen insurgent airplanes attacked Madrid twice today, killing at least 20 persons in the heart of the city.

Kidnap Manhunt Has Governor In Charge

TACOMA, Wash. (UP)—Snow, rain, ice-covered roads hampered officers today in a manhunt for the kidnaper of little Charles Mattson, 10, missing from his home eight days and held for a ransom that may be doubled to $56,000.

The search covered 250 square miles in four Western Washington counties after Dr. William W. Mattson, father of the abducted boy, was informed indirectly his son was well. Governor Clarence D. Martin personally went to the state patrol headquarters in Olympia, the state capitol, to direct the manhunt.
